FAST HORSE follows the return of the Blackfoot bareback horseracing tradition in a new form: the Indian Relay. Siksika horseman Allison RedCrow struggles to build a team with second-hand races and a new jockey, Cody BigTobacco to take on the best riders in the Blackfoot Confederacy at the Calgary Stampede.

USING THIS GUIDE

This educator guide is intended to provide context and background to the film FAST HORSE, offering a range of Pre-Viewing, Viewing, and Post-Viewing activities that underscore educational benchmarks of Montana Core and National Core Content Standards. The themes of the film are outlined in the context of Montana Office of Public Instruction’s Indian Education for All Essential Understandings. This guide aims to provide a framework for teachers to encourage active engagement before, during, and after viewing the film in an effort to engage in a deep dive into the content and craft of the filmmaking process and the stories they bring to life. Please note that this film contains mature content and content that may not be suitable for young viewers. Please follow the BSFI suggested protocol and make sure to pre-screen this film in advance.

THE DIRECTOR BEHIND THE FILM

"I was standing with our camera operator in front of 75,000 people and they were cheering so loud for these young Indigenous men riding these horses bareback that my chest was vibrating,” she says. "I'd never seen that before in my entire life, I thought, 'Oh my God, I have to make this film.'” Crafting films centered on Indigenous stories is paramount to Lazarowich, who wants to give her nieces and nephews role models like Cody to emulate. I wasn’t seeing films that give hope to a generation of kids growing up right now.” The need to represent the community was the key factor in Allison and Cody’s agreeing to be part of the film in the first place. “Every time we get into a festival, I ask if they want to come. And they always say, ‘Alex, we have to train the horses and we’re racing that weekend. But I think they understood fundamentally the importance of what they were doing and why it needed to be captured...A lot more young people have become very, very interested and want to learn more about the sport [Indian Relay] and actually want to participate, which I think is so badass.”

FILM SUBJECTS/INTERVIEWEES:
- Allison RedCrow, Old Sun Indian Relay Team Leader
- Cody Big Tobacco, Old Sun Indian Relay Jockey
- Mark Big Tobacco, Old Sun Indian Relay Jockey
- Racey RedCrow, Old Sun Indian Relay Jockey

LAND ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The Big Sky Film Institute acknowledges that we are in the aboriginal territories of the Salish and Kalispel people. In addition, we honor the twelve Montana tribes that have cared for and honored the distinct and multifarious region we now refer to as Montana. We would also like to pay our respects to the Siksika (Blackfoot) people in the Alberta territory of Canada, the traditional stewards of the territory around the Battle, North Saskatchewan and Red Deer rivers. We honor the path Indigenous peoples all over the world have shown us in caring for this place for the generations to come and hope this guide offers itself as an opportunity to better understand the stories of the land.
BY THE NUMBERS:

- The current population of the Siksika Nation is nearly 8,000 with approximately half living on the reserve and half living off the reserve. (Wolf Leg, 2020)

- In Canada’s 2016 census, 22,490 people identified as having Blackfoot ancestry (Dempsey, 2019).

- The Blackfoot signed Treaty 7 with the Canadian government in 1877. 130 years later, the largest class-action settlement in Canadian history was implemented with formulation of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission to facilitate reconciliation among the students, families and communities both directly and indirectly affected by Canada’s Indian Residential Schools system.

- The first European traders did not come into contact with the Blackfoot until the mid-18th century, although horses probably reached them via trade between 1725 and 1731 (Dempsey, 2019).

- The sport of Indian Relay is one of America’s oldest known competitions, dating back to more than 400 years.

- FAST HORSE takes place in part, on the Siksika Reserve in Southwestern Alberta, Canada, located approximately 60 miles southeast of the city of Calgary; the Kainawó:同事们 located on a reserve between Cardston and Lethbridge; the Apsáalooke are located on a reserve west of Fort MacLeod; and the Amskapi Pikuni are located on the Blackfeet Indian Reservation in Northwestern Montana, approximately 200 miles south of Calgary, AB.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

- Students will demonstrate an understanding of INDIAN RELAY and the history of horse racing among Indigenous peoples in North America.

- Through discussions of culture, history, personal experience, and perspective, students will construct working definitions that will allow them to re-examine and more deeply explore the film FAST HORSE.

- Students will make connections between the past and the present, looking at how certain activities evolve over time and are still relevant today.

- Students will identify various narratives illustrating diversity among groups, as well as make comparisons between words in different Native languages.

- Students will recognize the benefits of CAMARADERIE, RELATIONSHIP, and COMPETITION as a way to overcome obstacles, support identity, and build community.

- Students will identify the importance of telling this story within the context of a documentary film.

GUIDING QUESTIONS

- What role does history, tradition, and tribal culture play in FAST HORSE?

- Why is it important to learn about cultural and historical traditions of Indigenous groups such as the Blackfoot Confederacy?

- What role does language play in cultural preservation?

- What role does storytelling play in the transmission of oral history, tradition and indigenous knowledge?

- What is Indian Relay and how long has it been around?

- How does documentary film spotlight stories and histories, and what is its role in underscoring diverse representation on the screen?
Given the complexity of the themes FAST HORSE explores, this film is most suitable for use with high school-aged students (Grades 9-12). Teachers are encouraged to preview the content as it may be too mature for younger audiences. The film’s content, themes, and message is most clearly connected to the following areas of National Core and Montana Core Content Standards:

- The Blackfoot Confederacy’s original territory was later split by the 49th parallel that created the northern border or invisible “medicine line.”

- In 1876, the first Indian Act was passed by the Canadian Government and other subsequent Provincial governments to exercise control over what they deemed “First Nations” indigenous people in Canada.

- In 1877, Treaty 7 was signed at the historic Blackfoot Crossing, a National Historical Park and International site of cultural and archeological significance, recommended today as a World Heritage Site. An educational and entertainment center at Blackfoot Crossing commemorates the Treaty signing and preserves and promotes Siksika Nation’s tribal language, culture and traditions.

Essential Understanding 3

The ideologies of Native traditional beliefs and spirituality persist into modern day life as tribal cultures, traditions, and languages are still practiced by many American Indian people and are incorporated into how tribes govern and manage their affairs. Additionally, each tribe has its own oral histories, which are as valid as written histories. These histories predate the “discovery” of North America.

Key Concepts identified in FAST HORSE:

- The term spirituality within a cultural context can be limiting and misconstrued. Spirituality to Indigenous peoples generally refers to one aspect of their worldview in which all things are connected. Spirituality in this context does not necessarily equate to nor denote religion.

- Despite this history, Native people have retained their spiritual beliefs and traditions—tribal languages are still spoken, sacred songs are still sung, and rituals and ceremonies are still performed.

Additionally, each tribe has its own oral histories, which are as valid as written histories. These histories predate the “discovery” of North America.

Key Concepts identified in FAST HORSE:

- Horse racing was one of the more popular and exciting competitions between traditional men’s societies during summer time recreation. The “smart, expert” riders were usually young, adolescent boys that were often related to the owners of the horses.

- The first races were run across the level prairie and were anywhere from two to four miles in length, with crowds of spectators at the designated finish line, wagering bets on which horse was the fastest.

- The winning society celebrated their win with singing, dancing and rejoicing long into the evening, while the winning horse was entrusted to the care of an elder man and picketed outside its owner’s lodge (tipi).

- It is estimated that there are still several thousand speakers of the Blackfoot language, a member of the Algonquin language family, including many who no longer reside on one of the four reservations. There are, however, slight differences between dialects spoken in Blackfoot communities on both sides of the Canadian border.

- Since no two languages organize meaning in the same way, it is extremely difficult to find words in the Blackfoot language that mean the exact same thing in English.

- The Blackfoot language existed and was passed down orally for thousands of generations. It has been only recently that a standard system for pronunciation, alphabetization, and writing has been formulated and continues to evolve.

- Through years of research, interviews, efforts and support provided by the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada, the Native American Studies Department at the University of Lethbridge, and several elders and students, publication of a Blackfoot Dictionary of Stems, Roots and Affixes.

History is a story most often related through the subjective experience of the teller. With the inclusion of more and varied voices, histories are being rediscovered and revised. History told from American Indian perspectives frequently conflicts with the stories mainstream historians tell.

Key Concepts identified in FAST HORSE:

- American Indians domesticated horses and engaged in selective breeding, healing, and training of horses, distinguishing themselves as horse “catchers, healers, trainers, gelders,” and ultimately, Raiders on the Northwest Plains (Ewers, 1958, 158-160).

- The passing down of traditional teachings for attainment of useful knowledge required a reverence for nature, reflection, sacrifice, prayer and good thoughts. Taking this responsibility very seriously, individuals “paid” for their “holy” initiation into ceremony with personal items, such as food, tools, their best horses, or robes.

- Giving was a way of showing appreciation for the “powers” received from others and the more sacrifices made, the better (Calf Robe 1979, 44). Sacrificial offerings insured future blessings. “A Song for the Horse Nation” tells this story in thorough and often beautiful detail, through a range of artifacts, oral histories and multimedia.

BEFORE WE BEGIN... A NOTE TO TEACHERS

It is important that all students feel safe and respected when studying the themes of FAST HORSE. The strategies below can help students and teachers support positive learning while studying the film:

- Please be mindful and pre-screen this film in advance of student viewing. This curriculum is meant to spark ideas for discussion and encourage critical thinking skills.

- Use inviting and inclusive language when discussing themes and ideas from the film. This includes respectful reflection on race and privilege, highlighting that contribution to the conversation is an option for students and not a requirement.

- Encourage students to be active listeners, meaning they are creating space for others to share their experiences and perspectives and providing encouraging response.

- Underscore that the film they are about to watch is a documentary, meaning this film follows real people and lived experiences. Be respectful of personal differences and keep an open mind.

- Remind students to challenge ideas rather than people, with language such as, “I don’t see it that way...”, or “Your comments bring up questions for me...”

- Take ownership of comments and don’t put blame on others. Reframing input as one’s own (“I think...”), avoiding accusational language such as “You should...”

- Give plenty of time for students to think and reflect on discussion topics. You’re digging into complex and sensitive subject matter!

- Preface conversation with the Land Acknowledgement on Page 2, engaging in respectful language around personal and cultural needs of students, staff or visitors that identify as Indigenous.
• Up to 8 athletes compete in one race, riding 3 different horses bareback with only reins and a whip, around a racetrack at full speed, topping 40 miles per hour when they race to the finish line.

• In addition to competitions across Canada, the All Nations Indian Relay Championships holds 16 races June through September, with representatives from several tribes in at least 6 states: Washington, Oregon, Montana, Idaho, South Dakota, and Minnesota.

• Teams consist of one rider, three horses, two holders, and a mugger. Teams with the fastest times in different heats advance to the final race.

• At the World Championship Indian Relay Race every summer in Sheridan, Wyoming, teams pay a $500 entry fee and compete for $50,000, as well as other cash prizes, belt buckles, and jackets for different categories like traditional tribal clothing.

• 14 year-old Tyrell Mc Gilvery, from Goodfish Lake First Nation, northeast of Edmonton, Alberta, won the Chief’s buckle, after placing ninth out of 38 teams in the Canadian Indian Relay Racing Association’s season Championship race in 2018 – despite practicing with his new team for only two weeks. He started racing horses at age 7.

PRE-VIEWING ACTIVITIES

1) FILM TRAILER - Identifying the Hook
   - Before you begin... What is the role of a film trailer?
   - One main purpose of a film trailer is to give a feel for what the full film is about, without giving away the plot.
   - WATCH the trailer for FAST HORSE and have students identify film themes and ideas addressed in the trailer.
     - Who is being interviewed?
     - What is the conflict/issue presented? In a larger group, have students discuss the effectiveness of the trailer as a hook to the story the film presents.
     - What does the title, FAST HORSE, seem to suggest just by viewing the trailer?
   - DISCUSS film themes and character qualities introduced in the trailer. How effective was the trailer in hooking you and your students?
   - Trailer link here: https://vimeo.com/293443218

Introduction (15 minutes)

2) EXPLORING THE HISTORY OF THE HORSE IN BLACKFOOT CULTURE

WATCH the above trailer and then READ the following story about the first horses in Blackfeet culture:

THE FIRST HORSES

As referenced from Blackfeet Tales of Glacier National Park
by James Willard Schultz

In "The Story of the First Horses" (Schultz, 147), a Snipe helps a young Blackfeet boy called Long Arrow, bring horses to his people for the first time. Long Arrow was adopted by the bandleader Heavy Runner, and was tasked with seeking "medicine," that which would bring the boy "good luck in battle and in all matters of life" (Schultz, 147).

The boy-Snipe who led Long Arrow to the lakes where the horses lived, was one of the soylitapiksi (under-water beings). In this account, the mountain lakes Long Arrow traveled to were named by Heavy Runner, Two Inside Lakes, and today, refer to either Waterton Lakes in Canada, or St. Mary Lakes in Glacier National Park, Montana.

In order to become a leader, Heavy Runner’s advice to the young Long Arrow, was to be brave and fearless when facing an enemy; to be kind of heart and full of pity for the poor, the old, and the sick; “and always anxious to help them” (Schultz, 153).

ACTIVITY:

- ASK students to think about the above story and reflect on the oral language traditions of the Blackfoot Confederacy, thinking about the people’s relationship with nature, with horses, animals and each other.
- Have students REFLECT on any lessons learned from horses and other animals.
- CONSIDER, what do the stories teach about animals and about the people and animals’ relationships, or the people’s relationships with nature? How might the people’s culture, language and lifestyles change after attainment of the horse?
VIEWING ACTIVITIES

1) EXPLORING CAMARADERIE, COMMUNITY, FAMILY & RELATIONSHIP BUILDING:

ACTIVITY - Exploring Community
Think about the words FAMILY, CAMARADERIE, TEAMWORK & RELATIONSHIP in context with the quotes from the film found in the QUOTE BANK (p. 20), as well as with some of the images and sounds from the film:

- The clothing the relay teams wear to the race (feather warbonnet, bison headdress, ribbons, etc.)
- The way riders and horses are decorated, some with paint and/or matching team colors
  - The drumming, singing, and praying done before the race
- The honor song sung in Blackfoot at the film’s end, previously sung for warriors going into battle

LESSON EXTENSION

• WRITE an essay exploring human to animal relationships, while reflecting on the “give and take” that comes with relationship building over time and the evolving trust that is required between the two parties. (Think about RECIPROCITY and RESPECT)

WATCH THE FILM!

After engaging with some of the themes explored in the pre-viewing activities, your class should now be ready to watch the film. If you’ve registered through Big Sky Film Institute’s NFI Film Club you should have a provided link!

QUOTE BANK:

• “We know he can run, but it’s getting him to run the way we run, eh?” - Allison (00:01:07)
• “Anywhere we go, you know, we’re representing for our hometown in Siksika... and everyone is rooting for us to do good.” - Cody (00:06:33)
• “Relay racing is a family tradition. It’s good to have your family by your side, you know?” - Cody (00:06:57)
• “Show up, that’s the main thing, and cross that finish line for the people back home at Siksika.” - Cody (00:07:15)
• “You were just rolling bro, don’t worry about a thing, it’s all good.” - Cody (00:11:30)
• “It’s an honor to have that ability to ride like that.” - Cody (00:11:59)

ASSIGNMENT

1) WATCH Fast Horse
2) Have students CREATE a word map or cluster, first using the word “horse” in the center.
3) CLUSTER for ten minutes, using synonyms, sensory nouns and verbs to group the words around this common theme.
4) Using images from their personal experiences, students will then WRITE either an extended, descriptive definition, or write a poem around the word cluster for “horse.” The words and images conveyed in the poems will differ among students.
5) REPEAT for the words above, CAMARADERIE, FAMILY, and RELATIONSHIP.
6) SHARE student definitions and/or poems with the class.
POST-VIEWING ACTIVITIES

CONNECTION TO CULTURE THROUGH LANGUAGE - Why the Horse?

According to Bull Child (1985, 58), the Creator made animals with “split feet” to be used by the people as food. The first animals made after bison were elk, and its name refers to the way elk run through the heavy growth of forests, fields and mountains, he explains, as if their feet and legs “are magic or mystic.”

1) CONSIDER one of the Blackfoot words for horse:
   - poo noo kah = elk
   - ee mee dah = dog
   - poo noo kah mee dah = horse (elk dog)

2) THEN, look at this list of words from the Blackfoot Dictionary (Frantz and Russell, 1989, 343) in reference to HORSES.

2) DISCUSS how the Blackfoot language differs from English.

3) PLAY A GAME! FIRST, make a large deck of index cards with other animal names (or random nouns) written on each card. THEN, have the students get into smaller teams of four or five. NEXT, place the cards face down in the center of the table and have students take turns describing the animal (or noun) for their teammates to guess. The teammate who guesses correctly keeps the card and whoever ends up with the most cards wins. For another variation, use pictures instead of words and partners of two students. The students can then describe a picture for their partners to draw.

BLACFOOT WORDS FOR HORSE

• áápaokomi = horse with white neck markings
• óta’s = horse of, mount
• aapsski = horse with white facial marking, whiteface
• iitáóhkipistao’p = team horse, work horse
• ikt'ayissksima = pack a horse (by tying on a load)
• iktissta = bronc-ride, break, or tame a horse
• iponóóhki = lose one’s horse
• máóhkowa’si = roan horse
• makainnokaomitaa = horse of stunted growth, Shetland pony
• ota’si = own a horse
• otakhíssksiksi = brown (nosed) horse
• otakhísskí = buckskin horse
• ponokáómitaa = horse (elk dog)
• siká’saokkoyi = dark bay horse
• sikimiota’si = member of Black Horse Society

DID YOU KNOW?

• “Neo-traditionalists” of Blackfoot culture today recognize the importance of Native language revival for cultural preservation, for it is through the language we learn about our place in the universe and establish deeply-rooted relationships with all the forces of the world (BULL CHILD W/KIPP, 1985, viii-ix).

ASSIGNMENT

Have students RESEARCH one of these two topics and write a report on what they find:

1) A TRADITIONAL NATIVE GAME, beginning with this site, or
2) INVENTION from the book Encyclopedia of American Indian Contributions to the World: 15,000 Years of Inventions and Innovations (Keoke & Porterfield, 2003).

FILM TRIVIA

• FAST HORSE is a nationally acclaimed documentary! Before screening at Big Sky Doc Film Festival, the film won Best Documentary at the ImagineNATIVE Film Festival and was later awarded the Special Jury Award for Best Direction at the 2019 Sundance Film Festival

• FAST HORSE has screened at almost 20 film festivals around the world!
DOUBLE ENTRY CHART + DISCUSSION
(CAN BE APPLIED TO ANY OF THE ABOVE ACTIVITIES)

As students watch the film have them take notes in the attached Double/Entry Chart provided to have students remember specific moments in the film. After watching, ask students what they wrote down:

- What moments stood out to them?
- Was there anything in the film that changed what they knew or what they thought they knew?
- Many documentaries are also narrative, meaning they tell stories! How do we articulate certain histories through a good story?
  - Bring this back to the film. From which perspective is the film’s story told? Do they narrate? How much time are watching versus listening? Make a list!

SUPPORTING AN EFFECTIVE DISCUSSION:

To most effectively track learning throughout viewing and discussion, have students reflect on what they know about the issues being presented in the film. With their Double Entry Viewing Chart they will have written down observations and inquiries. The following is a short list of keys terms and vocabulary to help students articulate their analysis:

KEY TERMS (to sound like a professional):

EXPOSITION: the information that grounds you in a story (Who, What, Where When, and Why). Exposition gives us the tools to follow the story as it unfolds.

- Questions to ask students:
  - What information is given away?
  - What still don’t we know?
  - Who are we hearing from/who is interviewed (who is not?)?

- Examples of Expository Information:

THEME: A recurring idea that illuminates an aspect of the human condition. The theme is the most basic lifeblood of a film, it tells you what the film is about. This differs from the subject, which is the topic of the film. A theme gives a story/subject focus and depth and brings out universals from the subject of a complex/simple film subject. A good theme should have multiple layers: personal level, political level, or spiritual level

- Questions to ask students:
  - What are the universal ideas behind the film?
    - Ex: FAST HORSE highlights the story of the Old Sun Relay Team and Cody Big Tobacco, a first-time jockey. A modern incarnation of the ancient Blackfoot tradition of horsemanship competition, the film highlights more than just the extremeness of the sport, it highlights the importance of spotlighting the sport to underscore deep historical traditions and the power of camaraderie and healing that can take place when connecting to one’s roots.

SUBJECT: the topic/local point of the film

- Questions to ask students:
  - What is the general subject of this film?
    - Ex: FAST HORSE follows the Old Sun Relay Team through the eyes of its founder Allison Red Crow and Cody Big Tobacco.

ARC: the ways the events of the story transform the subject/character. Story arcs can be hard to find in documentary film, there is not always an obvious beginning, middle, and end (as in life!)

- Questions to ask students:
  1. What does the protagonist/subject learn about themselves as they pursue a goal?
  2. How has the film challenged your assumption about the film’s subject? Did you have preconceived notions of who the characters were/where they came from? Did this film change your opinion on this subject matter?

PLOT + CHARACTER:

- CHARACTER-DRIVEN: a film where the action of the film emerges from wants and needs of the characters
- PLOT-DRIVEN: characters are secondary to the events that make up the plot

- Question to ask students:
  1. Who is this film about? Is it about a person or an event?

Above is the story of how a Blackfeet tipi design was gifted to a “brave man” who shared his fresh bison meat with some crows. Later that night, the man dreamed that a crow disguised as a man came to him and thanked him. The crows expressed their gratitude and “RECIPROCATED” the gift. They gave the Blackfeet man “power to become leader of your tribe,” as well as giving him horses to bring back to his people, and the instructions and songs for future ownership of the Crow Tipi painted design. When the man awoke, he found the horses, drove them home, and later became chief of the Buffalo Dung band.
